

GABRIEL

I didn't get my RI license until a year after moving here.

In two years, it expires,

and in two years, I graduate,

and in two years, I'll have to find a new home.

REBECCA
OK, but you were saying
you love Providence.
I want to know why.
What are the things?

GABRIEL
I have many reasons.

REBECCA
OK, I want to know.

GABRIEL
My partner and I moved July of last year,

maybe August—

I can't remember.

...

When I think of Providence—
really, my time in Fox Point—
I think about my house.

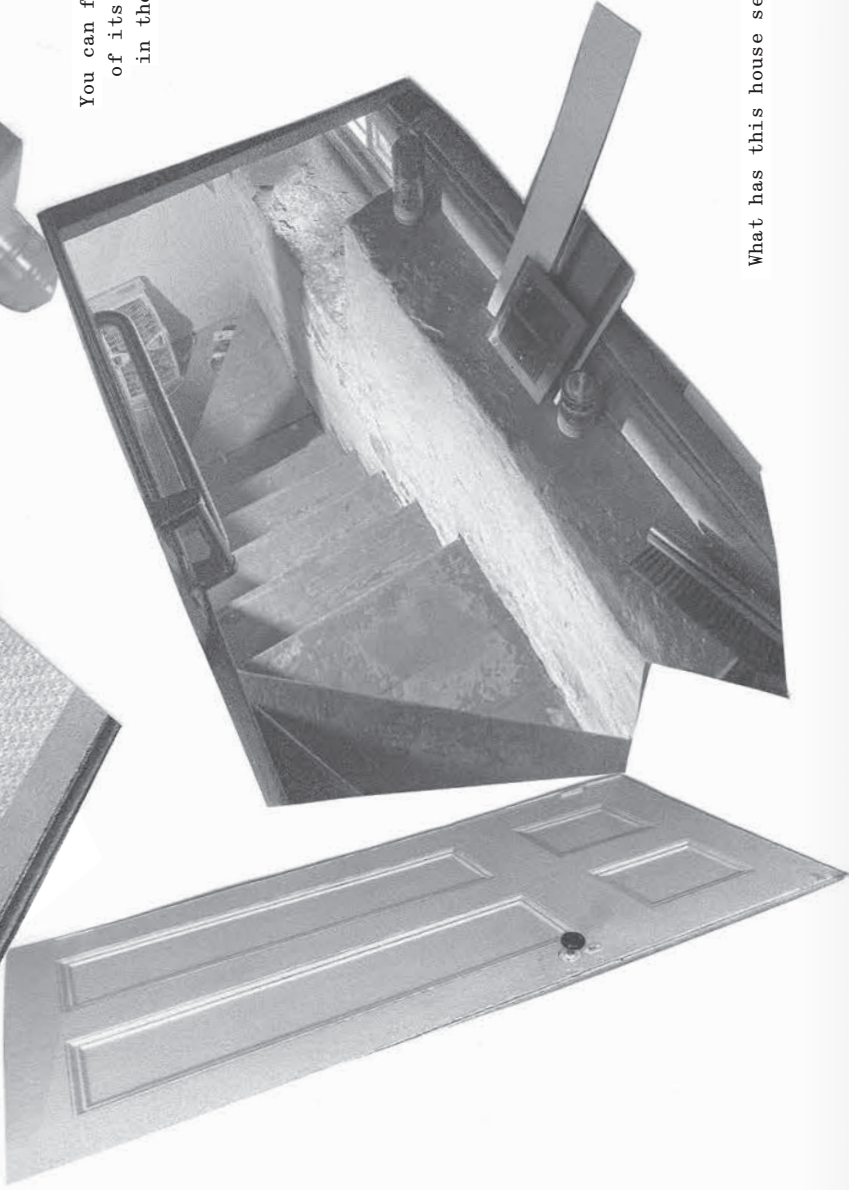

GABRIEL
This house is already almost 200 years old.

You can find the relics
of its restoration
in the basement.

Hardware,
furniture,
wood,
art.

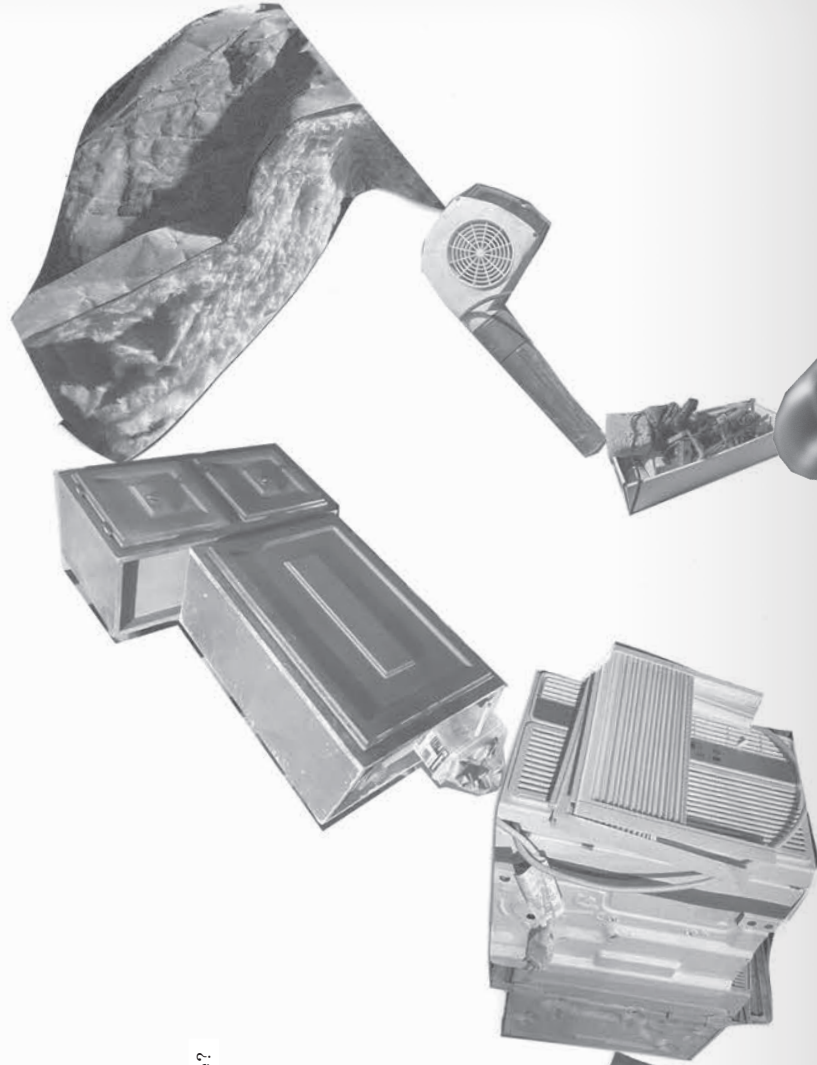

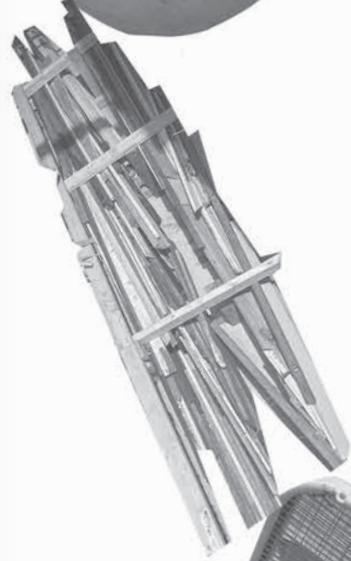

What has this house seen?

Maddie's earrings won't decompose for 500 years.

What will they see?

GABRIEL

Maddie, what's your favorite part about vending at maker's markets?

MADDIE

My favorite part?

GABRIEL

Mhmm.

MADDIE

Um, seeing people interact with my work.

...

And getting to connect with people and see the joy they feel when they put a pair of earrings on and they look in the mirror and they go

Oh!

That looks really special on me.

And it just is, um, a-

-such a distinctly personal thing.

That you can express yourself through it.

To make it a physical representation of something you feel.

When I think of legacy,
I think of Maddie's jewelry.

With every sale,
another person wears her art.

In a way,
they also wear her.

GABRIEL

I know what Maddie's customers wear.

What does my neighborhood wear?

Sometimes, I feel transient.
The markets come and go.

Sometimes, I feel like we're trying very hard to forget what used to be here.

It's not always on purpose, and it's not always.
